The layouts

L1 Ashwell Moor Norfolk Model Railway Syndicate BR / Eastern Region / 1988-1992

Ashwell Moor is a small stabling and fuel point set in the East of England circa 1988-1992. The layout is designed to prove you don't need a lot of space to make an interesting modern image layout in O gauge.

L2 East Midlands Test track Nelson Keen & the East Midlands Group

Come and exercise your locos or try out your purchases on the test track, which caters for most wheel standards (except S7 and coarse scale), employing 12v or 24v, 2-rail, centre 3rd rail, stud contact (using the centre rail as pick-up) plus live steam. Clearances between running lines also permit 16mm scale running on 32mm track. The test track is wired for DC and DCC. Come and talk to the live steam team too.

L3 Harlyn Pier Richard Frost

BR 1960s Western Region (North Cornwall)

The layout depicts the terminus of an imaginary (ex LSWR) branch line on the north coast of Cornwall not far from Padstow in the BR period circa 1960. The station is set on a guayside that connects to a ferry service from the adjacent dock, similar to the arrangement at Lymington Pier, which was the inspiration for the layout. The layout was designed and built by one of the team that constructed 'Harlyn Road' which was successfully exhibited for more than 10 years. Harlyn Pier is in fact the, often discussed. harbour extension.

L4 Okement Quarry Risborough & District MRC SR/GWR 1947-1960

Okement Quarry has been designed within the constraints of the Guild's modular lavout concept. There are two main lines, one of which simply passes through the layout, whereas the other links to a run round and sidings where the quarry buildings will be located. We have tried to make the scene interesting by including Meldon Quarry's engine shed and signal box, plus a stone hopper building, and others related to possible traffic that the quarry might have had in its heyday. See the work achieved so far and feel free to discuss how layouts like this can fit into the Guild modular boards.

L5 Wapping Wharf Geoffrey Roberts 1950s and 60s in the East End of London

A micro layout which is battery operated and sits on a six feet long table so ideal to show what can be achieved in a small space without mains power. This industrial layout depicts a coal drops yard in the East End of London.

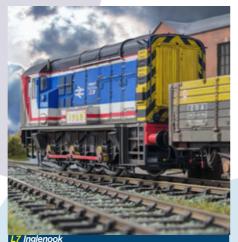

L6 West Brompton Twickenham & District MRC British Railways/London Underground c1960

A small layout, designed to be quickly erected on club nights, offering DC or DCC control, which will utilise the train turntables of our large exhibition layout Kensington Addison Road. The layout will include West Brompton District Line station, a listed historic building, together with the parallel tracks of the West London line. It is a new project and two baseboards will be shown as a static 'work in progress' exhibit to display the construction techniques being used.

L7 Inglenook (pictured on front page) Chatham & District MRC

A multi era layout which you can have a go at operating Inglenook has been inspired by the classic Inglenook 8 wagon shunting puzzle. A multi era layout depicts a set of private sidings servicing a factory. The Chatham and District Model Railway Club wanted to build and exhibit a layout that demonstrated what can be possible in a confined space while maintaining operational interest. In addition to this we wanted a layout that is engaging for all ages and abilities. Visitors to the show are encouraged to have a go at operating the layout and solving the puzzle.

L8 Holmeshurst lan Burford 1930-1937

Holmeshurst is an O gauge model of a Colonel Stephens light railway. Set in the area around Winchelsea & Rvein East Sussex around 1934. it depicts the terminus station of Holmeshurst complete with the busy high street and goods vard. The buildings are both scratch and kit built with detailed visible interiors and lighting. The station building is scratch built using plans provided by the Col. Stephens Society website and is a model of the Camber Station on the Rye & Camber Tramway. Many of the figures are homages to family members along with Col. Stephens and Frank Hornby.
